I wish to refer the case of the above named soldier to you for your consideration and decision.

He enlisted on May 17th, 1918, and was 19 years of age on Aug. 8th, and was thus ready to proceed with a Draft overseas. Owing to family circumstances - his father having died since the son's enlistment and nobody being left at home to look after his brother and sister, both younger than himself - he was granted leave of absence without pay for six months from Nov. 5th, 1918, on compassionate grounds, on authority of letter from you dated Nov. 4th, 1918.

This was but shortly before Demobilization was begun and if he had remained for another three weeks, he would have been demobilised and would have been entitled to the allowances upon discharge on that account.

As he has had nearly 7 months service in the Regiment, can he be granted his allowances on demobilization on the above grounds, although he is now absent on leave without pay.

Dear Sir -

I am writing you to see if you could release Private Harold Mulley from the Regiment.

Our father died this summer leaving us all alone as our mother also is dead.

I have no one at all home to keep me, as my little brother is too young, and I cannot possibly see how I can manage during the cold winter without Harold to look after us.

While father was alive it was different but his ^{sudden} departure this summer, left us almost helpless.

As we cannot do without Harold, please do your best to release him.

I am his sister Violet Age 17

Thanking you in anticipation

Dear Sir: -

I write you touching the case of P.C. Harold Mulvey; and wish to say that his father John Thomas Mulvey died here on the 6th day of September 1918.

Also to say that Harold is now the only support of two orphan children, - the mother having died about 6 years ago. The sister is 17 years of age, and the brother Melvin is not yet 13 years of age. I want to know if it possible that Harold could be released from military service.

A reply to the above at an early date would oblige.
