My Dear Glad,-

I find that my Passport was dropped in the car just before I reached Edinburgh; in the haste of getting away I must have dropped it out of my pocket; however, as things stand, I am without this most important document.

On reaching Edinburgh, I immediately reported my loss to the Station master, and every effort is being made to find it. If this is not discovered, can you possibly arrange to have a duplicate prepared, and sent to me immediately.

Any incidental expenses that may be incurred will be paid by ~~me~~ ^{me} when I am returning to London. I will enclose the draft.

Yours very truly,
 Charles Watson
